COVID EIDL Loan Program Overview

Borrower-friendly loans with flexible repayment and use of funds

The COVID Economic Injury Disaster Loan (EIDL) program is a federal loan program designed to help small businesses and nonprofits, recover from the COVID-19 economic recession by providing quick, borrower-friendly capital. Loans are available immediately, and can be used to meet a variety of immediate business needs. To expedite the application process, we recently simplified the affiliation requirements, and streamlined the loan review process. The program closes on December 31, 2021.

The program's low interest rates and 30-year repayment term provide manageable payments that can be deferred up to 2-years – allowing better control of cash flow.
